sharing the art of living

Edie Hand is a businesswoman, speaker, media personality, filmmaker, international author, and Mom. She has authored or been a part of authoring over twenty-five books.

The Edie Hand Foundation's brand "Women of True Grit" encourages women to share their stories and passion from the trials they face to their triumphs. Early in 2020, Edie was retained by global shipping and logistics corporation FedEx to assist with their Women in Leadership program by developing an inspirational book. She promoted her 'Women of True Grit' brand as a way to highlight stories from FedEx women executives. The resulting book, 'True Grit' shares stories from these women and how they met personal and professional challenges on their journey to achieve extraordinary success.

Edie Hand has also partnered to do a historical documentary and inspirational films in Birmingham, Alabama. To learn more visit BirminghamHistorical.com

Fifteen years ago Edie Hand founded The Edie Hand Foundation, in memory of her three young Blackburn brothers, to help pay life forward with acts of kindness to others with broken hearts. Edie is a numerous Cancer survivor and understands living with chronic illness but always finds the grit to keep moving onward and upward. She learned how to turn hard things into beautiful situations.

She also comes from a wonderful family heritage of songwriting, acting, and music from the Hood-Hacker-Presley Family. Her legendary cousin was Elvis Presley where she learned first-hand about paying life forward through charities in One's community.

Edie Hand (formerly Edith Blackburn Hand) lives near Birmingham, Alabama but her heart is in Hollywood, California with her only son, Linc Hand, and his wife Victoria.
